

Paying Contributions

Using a clearing house

If you have less than 20 employees, the easiest way to make contributions may be to use the Government's free Small Business Clearing House. This service can handle all of your super contributions, regardless of which super fund they are going to. Details are on their web site at: Small Business Superannuation Clearing House

It's fast, free and efficient – letting you get back to what's important to your business.

If you would like assistance with setting this service up, just give us a call and we will help.

If you have more than 20 employees you can use a commercial clearing house. WA Super has partnered with ClickSuper. Visit the ClickSuper website for details and to register.

This clearing house service is free for employers who have nominated WA Super as their default fund.

Paying directly

The Government introduced new mandatory data and payment standards called SuperStream which came into effect in October 2016. Since these standards have come into force, paying direct is no longer an option.

If you are not SuperStream compliant and wish to make a contribution to WA Super on behalf of your employee please contact the Fund on 9480 3500 or 1300 99 85 42 (Country Callers), or alternatively send an email to info@wasuper.com.au.
